

Sara Davison is an Associate Professor, clinical nephrologist, bioethicist and health outcomes researcher in the Department of Medicine at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. She also has cross appointments with the John Dossetor Health Ethics Centre and the Institute of Health Economics. Sara has a program of research funded through the Canadian Institutes of Health Research (CIHR) that challenges clinical approaches to the management and health care delivery of quality end-of-life care for patients with chronic kidney disease. She is active internationally giving talks on renal palliative care and acting as a consultant for establishing renal palliative care programs.